

To Whom it may concern: I am a truckdriver based in Florida and I wish it would be so easy as to receive television broadcasts directly to my vehicle as far as the weather and traffic goes but undubitably it isn't. I rely on the XM radio wherever I go to pickup those tidbits of information. Some of the bigger cities are right at my fingertips while others I'll rely on a local station that I've preprogrammed into my radio for traffic & weather. Tune into Tampa, Fl. for instance when your 50 miles out of town and listen to the broadcasts to determine your route into town!

P.S. would be nice if the agency could crack down on the basestations that wreak havok with those 1000 watt linears broadcasting about!
